Lame Back.

This is an ailment for which Chamberlain's Pain Balm has proven especially valuable. In almost every instance it affords prompt and permanent relief. Mr. Luke La Grange of Orange, Mich., says of it: "After using a plaster and other remedies for three weeks for a bad lame back, I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and two applications effected a cure." For sale by All Druggists.

THE CUB'S CORNER

I have come back—The Cub.

It is noticeable that all the married men are for single statehood.

The slim girl will be the style next season. Does the fat man come back into fashion?

The latest cure for the tobacco habit is the peanut. Now what is the red lemonade good for?

Mrs. Chadwick, the woman high financier, is going blind. His now up to Betty Green and John D. to keep their eyes open.

A Kansas City man says he has demonstrated that the Missouri river is a navigable stream. That's not all the Missouri river is by half.

If in doubt as to whether or not you have married your affinity, consult a lawyer. There's no limit on the number of affinities you may have.

Should a man pay his wife wages? asks an exchange, and a reader answering it says, "No! Just leave the change in your trouser's pocket and she'll pay herself."

At the Seaside.
Next season's girls, so they say, will all be slim;
What worries us, is how they'll look when they go to swim.

Knives were known before forks, says one of those old codgers who always digs up things from the long forgotten past. He neglected to say, however, just when eating pie with a knife ceased to be good form.

At last the secret has been discovered. A Kansas professor says the lack of civilization among the American Indians is due to the fact they never learned to make apple pie. Murder will out.

An Arizona woman says dogs go to heaven, but an Albuquerque man says if they do and sit and howl like they do some nights in Santa Fe, he wants to go to—well somewhere else anyhow.

Little Bo Peep had some sheep,
Down in New Mexico,
Now Little Bo Peep has no sheep,
(That was twenty years ago);
But Little Bo Peep, don't lose any sleep,
For now she has the dough.

Of a citizen who offered to bet that he could "lick anybody that had defeated him in a political argument," the Carmen Headlight says: "He lost the fight, but he bet his reputation, his good looks and his liberty in the first round."

Witty Old Lady.

When the old lady put her head out of the window and inquired of the young railway porter what the train was stopping for, the young fellow thought he would have a little fun at the old lady's expense.

"Engine was out late last night, ma'am," he replied, with a smile, "so they're giving her a drop of water."

"Ah! it's water," said the old lady, she grinned, "I'll inquire whether they're givin' her port wine."

"Never mind," came the answer, "don't you trouble, young man. I thought perhaps, by the way we've been getting along, she was run on sloe gin."—Tilt Bits.

Went the Limit.

In a western Kentucky town Ben Watson had saved the life of Myra Underhill. Miss Underhill had been overturned in a creek with a swift current, and the act of young Watson was a very heroic one. He had saved the life of the girl after she was sinking for the third time, and had barely strength to pull himself and the young woman to shallow water.

The news soon spread, and Ben Watson was hailed as the real live hero of the village.

Aunt Tabby Wilson, the oldest woman in the village, the mother of the little colony, was loud in praise of the heroism of the young man, and at once declared that Ben and Myra must get married. "Ben saved Myra's life," she said, "and now they must marry and be happy ever afterward. Just as they do it in the story books."

But Ben demurred; the arrangement did not suit him, says Harper's Weekly.

"Why not marry Myra, Ben?" said the old lady. "She is yours, and we must have a wedding."

"She is a nice girl, all right," replied Ben, "but I don't think we ought to marry. Soem to me," he went on, "I have done enough for Myra."

Card signs, "Rooms for Rent." "Board," etc., for sale at the office of The Evening Citizen.

Had Tetter for Thirty Years.

I have suffered with tetter for thirty years and have tried almost countless remedies with little, if any, relief. Three boxes of Chamberlain's Salve cured me. It was a torture. It breaks out a little sometimes, but nothing to what it used to do.—D. H. Bench, Midland City, Ala. Chamberlain's Salve is for sale by All Druggists.
